OBJECTS AND REASONS

(The objects and reasons do not form part of the Bill)

The object of this Bill is to amend the Commercial Registry and Beneficial Ownership Registration System Act to clarify and strengthen the framework for access to information in the Beneficial Ownership Register, to move Anguilla to a legitimate-interest access model, and to enhance the safeguards applicable to persons whose beneficial ownership information may be disclosed.

Clause 1 provides for the interpretation of the Bill. It defines “Act” to mean the Commercial Registry and Beneficial Ownership Registration System Act.

Clause 2 amends section 1 of the Act by inserting definitions of “legitimate interest” and “senior managing official”. The definition of “legitimate interest” supports the access framework under which persons may inspect beneficial ownership information only where they meet prescribed criteria. The definition of “senior managing official” is introduced to identify an appropriate individual in circumstances where an Anguilla company has no registrable person.

Clause 3 amends section 26 of the Act to require an Anguilla company that has no registrable persons to identify its senior managing official as the contact person for the company and to file the prescribed beneficial ownership information in respect of that individual. It also provides that, where there is no registrable person, the relevant provisions relating to changes, registration, inspection, non-disclosure, revocation and appeal apply, with appropriate modifications, to the senior managing official as if that individual were a registrable person. This is intended to ensure that the Beneficial Ownership Register remains complete and operational even where no registrable person is identified.

Clause 4 amends section 28 of the Act to revise the categories of persons who may request inspection of information in the Beneficial Ownership Register. It removes the provision for right of access by members of the public and provides instead for access by a person, in or outside Anguilla, whom the Commission has determined has a legitimate interest in inspecting the information. The clause also makes consequential amendments to remove references to “qualifying legitimate interest” and to delete provisions relating to public inspection. This amendment is intended to ensure that access to beneficial ownership information is regulated, criteria-based and subject to appropriate safeguards. The provision relating to public access was not previously operationalized.

Clause 5 amends section 29 of the Act to transfer responsibility for applications to prohibit disclosure from the Registrar to the Commission. It also clarifies that an application may be made to prohibit disclosure of specified beneficial ownership information to a person who makes a request under section 28(1)(c). The clause expands the protection framework by allowing risk to be assessed not only in relation to the registrable person, but also in relation to an individual living in the same household as the registrable person. It further requires applications to be supported by evidence and replaces references to the Registrar with references to the Commission. This is intended to ensure that applications for non-disclosure are evidence-based and assessed by the appropriate regulatory authority.

Clause 6 replaces section 30 of the Act with a new provision governing the determination of applications to prohibit disclosure of information in the Beneficial Ownership Register. The new section requires the Commission to conduct a detailed evaluation of the circumstances and to be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the registrable person, or an individual living in the same household, would be at serious risk of specified harm before granting an application. It also empowers the Commission to request additional information or evidence and to seek assistance from the Financial Intelligence Unit, law enforcement authorities in Anguilla, or any other person or body, in or outside Anguilla, that may assist in assessing the risk. The clause also requires the Commission to notify the applicant of its decision within 7 days, give reasons where an application is refused, and inform the applicant of the right to apply for permission to appeal. It further prevents disclosure by the Registrar while the application is pending. This is intended to create a clear, fair and risk-based process for determining whether information should be withheld from inspection.

Clause 7 amends section 31 of the Act to reflect the transfer of responsibility from the Registrar to the Commission. It provides that, where an application is made to the Commission to prohibit disclosure, the Commission must not disclose details concerning the application to a person referred to in section 28(1)(c). This protects the confidentiality of the application process.

Clause 8 amends section 32 of the Act by replacing references to the Registrar with references to the Commission. This is a consequential amendment arising from the transfer of responsibility for non-disclosure determinations to the Commission.

Clause 9 amends section 33 of the Act to revise the circumstances in which the Commission may revoke a determination prohibiting disclosure. The clause provides that the Commission may revoke a determination where the individual to whom it relates is serving, or has served, a sentence of imprisonment exceeding five years; has been convicted of an offence involving dishonesty; is subject, or has been subject, to United Kingdom sanctions extended to Anguilla; or where the Commission becomes aware of information which, if known at the time of the original determination, would have resulted in the application being refused. It also requires the Commission to provide written reasons where it revokes a determination and provides that the relevant information may then be inspected by persons with a legitimate interest, in accordance with the Act and Regulations. This amendment is intended to preserve the integrity of the non-disclosure regime and ensure that protection is not maintained where it is no longer justified.

Clause 10 amends section 34 of the Act by replacing references to the Registrar with references to the Commission and by providing that the lodging of an appeal against a determination of the Commission does not operate as a stay unless the Court orders otherwise. This is intended to clarify the effect of an appeal and to ensure that the Commission's determination remains effective unless the Court decides otherwise.

Clause 11 amends section 35 of the Act to replace references to the Registrar with references to the Commission and to align the language of the section with the revised framework for prohibiting disclosure. This is a consequential amendment to reflect the Commission's role in making non-disclosure determinations.

Clause 12 provides for the short title of the Act.

Overall, the Bill is intended to strengthen Anguilla's beneficial ownership framework by ensuring that access to beneficial ownership information is based on legitimate interest, that disclosure decisions are made by the Commission, and that persons at serious risk of harm are afforded appropriate protection while maintaining the integrity and usefulness of the Beneficial Ownership Register.
